The Crystals Beings of Divine Light speak:

Hello beloved Angels of great crystalline Light. We are here.

The Perception of the Fracture experience

We come here today to offer to thee a great--we use the word offering--yet we also offer the word opportunity, the great offering/opportunity of the healing of the divine recognition that there is, what is perceived to be, a fracture, and yet there is no fracture. Yet there is perception of a fracture. Let us explain.

Within the illumination of your world, there are many beings that are illuminated to the presence of Divine Light and many beings that are illuminated to the presence of crystalline Light. And many beings that are illuminated to the presence of simply, Light.

*Divine Light. Crystalline Light. Light.
Divine Light. Crystalline Light. Light.*

This is where there is the perception of fracture; that perhaps one is not the same as the other or as the other. And yet the three exist, as they would say, as a tripod of the same stool. In order for the stool to stand it needs all three legs.

The Divine Light, the Crystalline Light, and the Light.

ARCHANGELIC INSOULMENT

Let us offer to you the recognition of these energies so that you may be ever present and ever aware that all fracture...all fracture, can be healed; because all fracture is simply a misunderstanding or, let us say, a misperception.

For example when one fractures, let us say, a bone, within the human form, there is the possibility that one would have an accident, or injure thyself, thereby causing a fracture.

The fracture causes pain.

The fracture causes one to cease what they are doing.

The fracture causes one to surrender to the help of another, to assist to repair the fracture.

And then the fracture requires patience and time to heal.

How the fracture heals is based upon many things, is it not?

It is based upon the time between the initial fracture, and the “setting of the fracture”.

It is based upon the quality of the set. It is based upon the patience of the time of healing.

It is based upon the energy.

How one responds after the healing can be with joy or with frustration.

Can be with pain are with comfort.

There are so many aspects to fracture, are there not?

And all of these aspects are important, including the fracture itself.

Often time a fracture comes when is most inconvenient.

And yet when the fracture comes, one must stop, one must attend, and one must become aware.

To stop. To attend. To be aware.

These are very much the three energies of that three-legged stool that are very much overlaid with the Light energies.

To stop, to attend, to be aware.

Deepening your connection with Light

When one connects with the Light for the first time, with the concept of Light, there is a “stop” in the way one has been experiencing their energetic life.

One suddenly stops.
There is Light!

And in the recognition, there is Light...in the stopping... in the giant brakes that are applied...
one begins asking many questions.

Where has this Light been?

What is the source of this Light?

How does this Light exist within me?

And expansion begins. One can either stay very much with this Light because many when they receive their fracture, then organize their life, the remainder of their life, around this fracture. Because I had this accident, because I have this addiction, because I had this experience, because this whatever happened to me, I am forever doing something differently.

And what is initially seen as freedom can become an entrapment. When one first discovers what is often a concept or the perception of the Light, it is a halting energy a stopping energy, and of course it is an opening energy. It is one leg on the stool. It is part of the support structure.

And many people stay in that leg, otherwise that leg would not exist!

Expanding through Light to Divine Light

Yet from that leg, one becomes through the stop, one must then attend. And through attending, one discovers Divine Light. Divine Light comes through the attending to the Light.

When you begin to attend the Light, when you ask the questions from the recognition of the inquiry based upon sincerity, questioning based upon sincerity... Remember, when one questions simply to question, you are staying in the stop mode. And, when one questions from sincerity, they find the answers in what expands from the Light into the greater depth of Divine Light.

Divine Light carries with it an energy of expansion, an energy of recognition, and it begins to heal a perceived fracture or wound, or addiction, or incident or experience, because one sees beyond the Light into the experience of Divine Light.

Divine Light is indeed a great experience because it demands your attention. The more you attend to this, the greater the experience, the greater the understanding. The fracture, the experience says stop, and you discover the Light. In the discovery of the Light you stay with the Light you identify with the Light it becomes your life, or you expand with the Light and discover though Divine Light through attending to the Light, rather than being controlled by it.

This is a great and important discernment, because part of the discovery, part of the attending to the Light, is the expansion of discernment. As you attend, you become aware. As with the fracture, it stops. You attend to the fracture, and through the process of the healing of the post fracture experience, you become greatly aware.

From Divine Light to Crystalline Light

And as you attend to Divine Light and grow with Divine Light and understand the Divine Light, you expand and discover through your greater awareness Crystalline Light.

There are the three legs.

Those who will stop and forever be defined by whatever fracture or experience has come forward to birth Light. This is all a beautiful blessing.

There are those who will stay in the stop, even though they are very active. And they will talk about the Light the Light the Light the Light, yet they will be limited within that Light.

There are those who will attend to the Light and discover the Divine Light, and be ever more refined. Yet the Divine Light is also through the refinement and the awareness and opportunity that finds an egoic presence of spirit. It is a powerful...powerful experience, and there are many who will stay there, thereby supporting that second leg.

And then there are those who will grow and heal through the Divine light, and open greater awareness.

It is as if one day you simply turn around and Crystalline Light envelops you.

And when you step through, the Crystalline Light envelops you, and you discover that all facets are in that single crystal, that all energies are one, and you smile that the third leg is part of the second leg is part of the first leg, and unifies all.

In the Crystalline Light, there is the absolute awareness of all experience, of all recognition, and of the one knowing.

Dogma and Mono-theism

In your world there have been throughout your history of dogmatic traditions, and those that claim to be non-dogmatic traditions, many discussions about monotheism or not.

What is better? What is not?

Traditions that believe in one god, one expression, traditions that offer multi-forms.

SRI & KIRA

ARCHANGELIC INSOULMENT

Yet there are great smiles that within all of these traditions, there are always multi-forms, yet there are the phraseologies that try to experience one.

Many trinities are available. Light, Divine Light, Crystalline Light. Trinity energy. Father, son, Holy Ghost. Many Trinity energies. They are all prevalent. It is because of these aspects of Light and the unifying overlay.

Crystalline Light is the reunified energy of the refraction of Light.

If one is to say, "I see all the rays of Light," and one is to say "I understand Crystalline Light," it is not that one is, as you would say, monotheistic and one is not.

It is simply that one is embracing the experience of all experience in the full recognition of unity consciousness, of oneness consciousness.

In a world of labels, the mind flourishes.

In a world of crystalline energy, the heart flourishes, and the mind releases.

When the mind is in control, one must have a label, an explanation, an understanding, and an organization, to fit things into.

In a world of heart energy, there is the smile that all of the head energy exists and must have its due...and there is the gentle peace that can walk with this.

We offer this to you because we invite thee to recognize that you hear this, you feel this, you see this, because you carry the form of a being of flesh that is offering great respite and home to a being of great Light.

Is that being of Light?

Is that being of Divine Light?

Is that being of Crystalline Light?

Your heart knows this truth, and your mind can be free and relax into this.

Take that one crystal and see all.

Refract it in Light and you see many.

There is the moment of divine reunification and unification.

It is a beautiful ever refining spiral of knowledge, wisdom, and discernment, yet another Trinity.

Knowledge, wisdom, and discernment.

Within these energies, within these recognitions, the ignition of your expansive presence is what will come forward to determine and know the future, past, and present rolled into one, expanded through all.

Present for your knowing and present for your being.

The Dimensions of Expansion

Time is eternal. Moments are limited.
Yet all weave together into the beautiful tapestry that unifies every single cell.

Call forth the divine compassion within and unify your own stream of Light.
You are your own tripod, and you are your own seer.
You are unified and you are experiencing.

Breathe in and feel the gift of one breath unified as all breath, and you will discover yet again another realm is unfolding.

The dimensional realms are before thee now and all of the dimensions are present and calling. There are great alignments and misalignments that are coming forth again into each dimensional area. And as this recognition expands, it will become very clear, as clear as any expression, which dimension is showing itself, revealing itself, and gifting itself through your presence now.

It is not that every being is not aware. Every being is very aware.

It is that each being is celebrating within the dimensional reality that is available to the vibrational frequency that is ignited based upon the leg of the stool of Light.

It is that simple and yet for many it will feel that complex. Multiple layers of time, multiple layers of space, multiple layers of perceived reality, multiple layers of dimensionality, are all simultaneously present now in a way and manner that they have not been before.

And so it can be a confusing time. It can feel very intense. It can feel almost too much to bear until one relaxes into the divine experience and brings forward the radiant smile.
Hold up that crystal, or are you the crystal that has been held up.

It is the moment. It is the time. It is the great restoration of power within, to command within, that which you are clear of.

You are only as clear as you allow yourself to be.
And you are only as a radiant as you give yourself the abundant permission to be so.

When you go beyond our words, and float with us in the realms of great, resurrected energy, you will find the ascended principles within that have always been guiding. You will smile and relax, and you will understand at a level that cannot ever be given to you in words, but can only be offered to you with our presence.

We the Crystalline Beings of Divine Light, shower you now with the great blue energy, and the great green energy, and the crystalline field of shimmering Light. We shimmer this Light toward you now so that you may breathe in fully and ignite your own divine presence within.

All fracture is a way to heal.
And all healing is an opportunity to release fracture.
Let go of redefining thyself and simply relax into that which you have always been.

Which dimension are you calling forward now, for they are all here for you now.
And you have always been available and always will be and are ever present.

Breathe in.

Feel the tips of your fingers as if there are great shimmers of Light pouring out of them. Feel the sparks as we would call them, as you would call them, of shimmering Crystalline Light all around thee now.

When you breathe in, when you relax in, and when you simply allow through the active principle of divine action, you will find all will effortlessly flow. And your world is a great flow now, and this flow will continue uninterrupted until all have touched their own flow again.

And so it is.
